October, 2014

from the desk of the
PRESIDENT

Dear Member, 28 September, 2014

It was a privilege to be elected President of India's oldest institution of its kind at the last AGM on 25th September 2014.

Your Chamber is truly an evergreen organization bringing to you all an eclectic mix of activities, and inducting in its rolls professionals from all walks of life. A Nuclear Cardiologist by training and a professional with entrepreneurship as a passion, I am heading the Medica Group of Hospitals and thought I should introduce myself to you through these columns. Indeed, it is enlightening to see how the Bengal Chamber has truly recognized the need for a confluence of ideas and bringing to board people from diverse fields of activities including civil society.

The year ahead will be an exciting one, I can promise. It has certainly begun on a stimulating note with us participating and building lasting bridges with our counterparts in Bangladesh and continuing with our State-focus led approach in the North East. An effort is underway to work in a consolidated manner in the East and more on that will follow in the next few columns. In the meantime, many of our Expert Committees have planned events in the last two quarters of this fiscal and we hope, with your goodwill, support and participation, to bring to you a basketful of activities – from sports to business to social events.

THINK SESSION : 150 YEARS OF EDEN GARDENS : A PANEL DISCUSSION

October 15, 2014, Palladian Lounge,
Chamber Premises

▲ A cross section of the audience

A panel discussion on 150 years of Eden Gardens, commemorating 150 years of the hallowed stadium, organized by the Bengal Chamber of Commerce and Industry in association with IDBI Bank, The Telegraph, Air India and Anderson Printing opened to a packed house.

The second largest cricket stadium in India by seating capacity, the Eden Gardens remains cricket's answer to the Coliseum in Rome. The Eden Gardens hasn't been just cricket but a life lived under its rich history that rose to mythical proportions at times, felt the panel of Bengal cricketers spanning generations – the likes of Gopal Bose, Russi Jeejeebhoy, Saradindu Mukherjee, Deep Dasgupta, CAB Treasurer Biswarup Dey and noted journalist and moderator of the session, Debashish Datta.

Sharing their personal anecdotes and speaking of the glory of Eden Gardens, the stalwarts recreated the sub plots in the big story that make Eden Gardens. Wicketkeeper Deep Dasgupta, opening batsman Gopal Bose and off –spinner Saradindu Mukherjee spoke of their tryst with the ground – a ground that grew from having the coarse slab of concrete as stands to wooden stands and finally now the more comfortable bucket seats to the age defying outfield that has remained grassy and of smooth character, making it the best in the country, way above Delhi's dusty Feroze Shah Kotla and the undulating Wankhede Stadium in Mumbai.

According to Gopal Bose, Eden's character has changed over the years owing to the "haphazard construction", though CAB has been able to gradually rectify the flaws. The old-timers linked Eden's vanishing swing with the new constructions, specially the design of some of the stands, which have changed the course of wind flowing into the stadium. But despite the blemishes, they were all for change as change is perpetual.

With the ground's legacy being transcendent, the iconic ground has witnessed countless test matches, ODIs, Twenty20s and of course the latest in the marquee, the IPL.

As one of the country's oldest Chamber of Commerce, The Bengal Chamber was privileged to host a programme for the most special cricket ground in the country.

The aim of this ACM student chapter is to acquire or refer potential resources for assisting learner's deliverables. Identifying and classifying research topics to its last publication state is the crucial factor to design or solve recent challenges or to contribute into the existing scientific literature. Acquiring and sharing recent breakthroughs among learners are the prime objectives of the JIS ACM Student Chapter. The technology gap at the pre-final year stage of learners always deviate them from the focus of problem solving. A framework consists of hands-on seed topics, plug and play tools. Available standard dictionaries or data set is the other side of guidance.

JIS College of Engineering motivates students to ‘Go the entrepreneurial way’

▲ L-R - Mr. Taranjit Singh (MD, JIS Group) inaugurating the session with other dignitaries

7th October, Kolkata:

The Entrepreneurship Development Cell of JIS College of Engineering, under the aegis of JIS Group Educational Initiatives, very recently organized a “National Entrepreneurship Summit 2014”, in order to interact with students across all colleges present in West Bengal and to encourage and enlighten them about entrepreneurship endeavours.

Guest speakers at this event included Arijit Bhattacharya (Founder and Director of Virtual Infocom), Atul Gupta (Founder and CEO, Insync Solution Ltd.), Anurag Batra, among others.

Said Mr. Taranjit Singh, MD – JIS Group, “At JIS, we place a very solid focus on entrepreneurship, and encourage students to start up their own initiatives, thereby making their mark in the industry and generating employment for others.”

Recent trends indicate that a greater number of graduating students are learning to think beyond the usual 9-to-5 jobs and are excited about starting their own companies. The National Entrepreneurship Summit placed emphasis on exactly that – with speakers counselling the students on how to make it on their own, giving them guidelines and suggestions, as well as speaking at interactive sessions on the ABC of entrepreneurship.
